Fig. 1: Levels of evidence for evaluating the relationship between laboratory abnormalities and venous thrombophilia.

*The laboratory abnormality has been measured in a credible fashion, and there is supporting evidence for an association between the abnormality and venous thromboembolism from clinical or observational studies.

[Return to text]