Fig. 1: Nonmedical stimulant use reported by adolescent students in Atlantic Canada who did not have a prescription for stimulant medication (shown as proportions of school classes and individual students, stratified by province), according to the number of students in their class who gave away some of their prescribed stimulant medication.

[Return to text]